Shirli and Jack Flack relocated to Port Washington shortly after getting married, where they established a significant presence in the region. In 1969, they founded Allied Insulation Supply Company (AIS) in Milwaukee, a family-run business that has grown to operate across the Midwest.

This entrepreneurial venture laid the foundation for their future philanthropic activities.

Following Jack's passing in 2003, Shirli has continued to uphold their shared values through active charitable engagement. Shirli is renowned for her unwavering support of local causes, such as supporting the Port Washington High School soccer programs through their donation for the Jack & Shirli Flack Soccer Field. Whether it's sponsoring charity runs, golf outings, or community events, her contributions have made a significant impact on numerous initiatives. Her dedication to enhancing the quality of life in her community is evident in her ongoing involvement and generosity.
